

Arts Camp

HELLO DEAR FRIENDS!

August was a busy, crazy, fun, challenging, stressful, inspiring, emotional month for me. I spent the last two weeks of it with an exciting group of kids. We sang, we danced, we acted, we put on a show...we had a wonderful time. I woke up every morning and asked God to hold off on the rain because I didn't have a plan important:)

I'm already planning for our next camp. Ideas are swirling around in my head. And I have some eager kids already asking what we are doing next time. Thank you for all your prayers. It was a great success!

B. God heard, and God answered. It didn't rain for the entire two weeks. The weather was perfect. Show day looked a little dreary in the morning but by the time we started it had cleared up. The kids did a wonderful job. Made all their entrances and exits right on cue. Sammy served as my sound man and did a great job. He was very proud of himself and felt very

LONGONOT...

Well, August was not just about Arts Camp. We also went on a fun hike up Mt. Longonot. I had just had my wisdom tooth pulled the day before and was on pain medication. I was dizzy and nauseous the whole time. Not a good combination for a 3 hour hike up a mountain. Our six and eight year old did better than I did. They are younger and have more energy. That's my excuse. Haha.

KARURA FOREST...

We took the boys with privileges on a fun hike through Karura Forest one Sunday afternoon. We were searching for the waterfall and Mau Mau caves and got lost. A few of us broke away from the group and eventually found the waterfall but gave up on the caves. After looking at the map we discovered that we gave up too soon. If we had gone just a few hundred feet we would have ran right into them. Next time...

HOME...

It's been a fun month but as I mentioned earlier it has not been without it's challenges. We rushed my mom to the hospital about 2 weeks ago. She had been suffering from a severe headache and started vomiting. Upon arriving at the hospital they discovered that she was bleeding in her brain. They took her into emergency surgery on Monday afternoon. We were told by the doctor that she shouldn't have survived. But we serve a great God. One of the doctors even commented that God must have more work for her to do. It has been hard to see her in her current condition but she is improving slowly day by day. We continue to pray and believe God for her complete healing.

AND NOW...

August has come to an end. School starts next week. We are planning one last fun day for the boys before they hit the books. We are going to have a field day with a bunch of games and relays etc. The winning team gets taken out for pizza. Food is always a good prize for a bunch of boys;) After next week I go back to my normal schedule of teaching at Rehema and here at Ahadi. As always, thank you for your prayers and support. I appreciate you all so very much. Until next time.....Cheers!
